The Challenge

Over the last few years, there has been a significant increase in anti-social behaviour & theft crimes to rural businesses across the UK.

Haydown Kitchens found that they were targeted by a night-time burglary. The limitations of their existing old analogue CCTV system and Intruder Alarm meant that they struggled to provide a level of security needed.

As one of the most popular kitchen installers in the south, Chris and Lis were determined to provide a thriving, safe business premises. To achieve this, they recognised the need for a modern CCTV system and an improved Intruder Alarm system.
